In 1971 a small group of botanists and horticulturalists organised a three month expedition to the Upper Arun Valley region of eastern Nepal to collect seed and specimens of ornamental and economic plants both wild and cultivated This book chronicles the travels of the three man horticultural team The journey often followed little known tracks through some of the world's most dramatic and lonely mountain terrain. The team either camped or enjoyed the hospitality of T. From Publishers Weekly. First published in 1981 and out of print for several years, this new edition has been slightly expanded and lavishly illustrated. It is a visual delight as well as a riveting adventure story. In the autumn of 1971 Lancaster Travels in Ch
